Beach goers can take on the elements in a number of activities including windsurfing at Kailua Beach Park, located just minutes from MCB Hawaii, Kaneohe Bay.

The white sand, cool blue waters, and excellent view is, for some, the perfect ambience in which to take a mid-day stroll.

Weekend activities abound at

Kailua Beach Park

Swimming, wind surfing, kite surfing, and sun bathing can all be found at a beach that was named the best beach in America in 1998.

That's right — just a few miles outside the backgate of MCB Hawaii, Kaneohe Bay, one can find all these activities and more at an often-overlooked area called Kailua Beach Park.

Companies like Windsurfing Hawaii rent out equipment for windsurfing and kite surfing to visitors. They are located in one of the two parking areas for the beach.

There are also other locations near the beach where kayaks and outrigger canoes can be rented.

Swimmers don't need to worry about getting hit by a surfer or kayaker, thanks to the buoy set up, designating swim and surf areas.

Anyone interested in body boarding can enjoy a time of riding waves into the sandy shore.

There are plenty of areas to spread out a towel and lay back until one is cooked to a golden tan. With the minimal amount of trees in the area, sun-screen might be a necessity for some.

Out in the distance, there are a few scenic areas that might catch the eye of a couple walking along the beach.

To one side is the town of Kailua, which leads to the turtle-shape peninsula that K-Bay rests on.

People with kayaks can be seen paddling out to the island for a picnic or just a place to get away.

For units that would rather run than play in the ocean waters, a run route that stretches more than three miles through the nearby streets of Lanikai, lies near the beach.

With a few hills, the run starts and ends on the beach, where runners can take a refreshing plunge into the cool water.

If running in the morning is more favorable, a runner might just stop on the hill past the beach and wait for the fiery rays of the sun to show for the first time that day.

Although there are other more popular beaches on Oahu — Hanauma Bay and Waikiki Beach to name a few — why travel when K-Bay residents can find just as much fun in the sun in their own back yards?

For those who develop an appetite after participating in any of the beach's activities, a food court that offers soda, hot dogs, candy and shaved ice, is also located just steps from the beach parking lot.

If outdoor activities and trying new sports are of interest, Kailua Beach Park is the place to go. From outrigger canoes to kite surfing equipment, the beach at Kailua has the resources to allow a beach goer to stay there from the moment the sun peeks out from the horizon to the time it settles back behind the mountains without running out of activities to engage in.

Equipment for wind surfing, kite surfing (shown above,) kayaking and other beach activity-oriented equipment can be rented via companies conveniently located near the shores of the beach.

POSSIBILITIES IN PARADISE

By Debbie Aisoff, MCCS Public Affairs

So, it’s 2001, the beginning of the “real” millennium. New Year’s resolutions are made and New Year’s resolutions are broken... One element of the New Year that won’t be broken is the vast and fantastic Marine Corps Community Services’ activities, events and engagements offered to you each and every month. For all stages and all phases, MCCS continues to better the lives of Marines, Sailors and family members.

When you’re ready to ride the informational waves of the 21st century, jump online and surf our website at www.mccshawaii.com Once inside cyberspace, click on Baby New Year for the latest MCCS happenings.

Renown Resources

Starting the New Year off right includes thriving in your surroundings. Make the most of your surroundings by understanding the vast, free resources available to you and your family through MCCS’ Personal Services.

One of America’s most popular New Year Resolutions is to get out of debt and to save money. This is the perfect time to attend one of the money workshops, “Financial Fitness,” which will give you the skills needed to keep that resolution.

Perhaps you’re thinking about returning to school or opting to launch your career, or maybe you’re getting married or planning a family—all of these life-altering events will be enhanced if you attend a free, comprehensible class from Personal Services.

Just in time for the New Year, you can pick-up the Personal Services quarterly newsletter in Bldg. 216. This information-packed publication will provide you with names, phone numbers and a list of workshop descriptions, times and dates. If you’ve got questions, Personal Services has answers. Give them a try. Call 257-7786.

Upcoming classes include:

- Island Tour
- Marriage Skills, Powerful Communication
- Federal Job Workshop, Interviewing Workshop, Car Buying Maneuvers, How to Handle Conflict & Manage Anger.

Call for exact times, location and reservations. All authorized military I.D. cardholders are eligible to attend. We want to see you there.

NFL Military Challenge

The Air Force will have one. The Army will be represented. Marines and Sailors, who will make up the six-member team to comprise, Team Marine Corps Base Hawaii for the NFL Military Challenge? If you’ve got what it takes to not only make it through but outshine the competition in the 40-Yard Dash, Field Goal Kick, Quarterback Challenge, Obstacle course, the Sony Play and more, then you need to get yourself down to Pop Warner Field, Jan 20 at 10 a.m. The top six participants will comprise Team MCBH and compete in the NFL Military Challenge that happens Fri. Feb. 2 at the Honolulu Stadium. If you “won’t be denied,” call Jason Enrique for more information at 254-7591.

Fastballs, Curve Balls & Screwballs

With the MCBH Co-ed Softball League about to ignite, all coaches are encouraged to get their most proficient fastball, curveball and screwball players together. All teams must have at least 10 players. All authorized military I.D. cardholders are eligible to participate.

A coaches’ meeting is scheduled for Jan. 24 at 2 p.m. in the Semper Fit Center. The Co-ed Softball League will begin approximately Jan. 28. For more athletic inquiries, call “The Sports Guy,” Jason Enrique at 254-7591.

Batter-up...

It promotes individual and team effort. It instills accomplishment and self-confidence. It’s Windward Community Federal Credit Union and Youth Activities’ Baseball, Softball and T-Ball. Give your child the chance to step up to the plate and enter in a little healthy competition. Children ages 5 – 17 are eligible to participate. SM&SP

...And now a word from your new SM&SP President...

Aloha,
I am HM2 John J Konecko and I am your new Single Marine/Sailor Advisory Council President. I took over the post in November and would like to share my focus of the program with you for the year.

Headquarters Marine Corps has mandated the SM&SP in order to help single Marines and Sailors personally and professionally by affording them with constructive off duty activities. This does not mean we are a free program, but that we try and sponsor as many free events as possible before we need to fundraise and solicit sponsorship dollars.

I would like to provide as many exciting activities to you as we can. I am also committed to keeping costs down to a minimum while providing the largest variety of activities. I would like to see more people aware of our presence and encourage them to participate in our events.

Holiday celebrations and functions are paramount to me, as we all may not have anywhere to celebrate these seasonal traditions—and that’s a lonely feeling.

I encourage you to seek out your SM&SP Unit Representatives or email me and give us your suggestions as well as your participation. I’ll do everything I can to ensure you enjoy yourself as much as possible while stationed in “Paradise”

Semper Fi,
HM2 Konecko,
SP&SP President

Putt This

It’s time to get some practice on your swing and enter the SM&SP’s quarterly golf tournament, the Shank & Slice I at the K-Bay Klipper, Fri. Jan. 26. Tee time is 12:30 p.m. $20 per person. Open to all active duty Marines and Sailors E-5 and below. Open to all skill levels. Prizes awarded on blind draw. Spaces are limited. Register through Jan. 23. Call 254-7593.

Are you for “Reel?”

Here’s your chance to get in on the Deep Sea Fishing Frenzy. What better bait to get you hooked than to save some cash? Sign up Mon. Jan. 15 – Feb. 5 for the SM&SP’s Deep Sea Fishing excursion happening Sat. Feb. 10 from 7 a.m. – 5 p.m. For only $50, you’ll score all fishing equipment and bait. You just need to bring refreshments. This nautilus journey begins at the Base Marina. Don’t let this trip be “the one that got away.”

Fisherman pulls in 1,070 lbs. catch

Lance Cpl. Iain A. Schnaible
Combat Correspondent

When John R. Cazinha, the son-in-law of retired Master Gunnery Sgt. Robert E. Talmadge, a veteran of the Chosin Reservoir Campaign and member of the Aloha Chapter of the Chosin Few, departed for a day of angling off of Moku Manu Island on Windward Oahu, he had hopes of bringing in a big catch.

Nothing could have prepared him for what he was to find and catch.

At about 9:15 a.m., Dec. 29, 2000, Cazinha, captain of the 26-foot boat Ko’ahu Too, got a bite. He immediately knew the Pacific Blue Marlin was big, much bigger than the 642 lb. Marlin he had caught in 1996.

The battle with the massive sea creature drew on for hours. At about 2:30 p.m., Cazinha along with John Benson and 13-year old Mark Perkins, his crew, finally brought the catch to the edge of the boat.

The crew of the Marine Corps Community Services charter boat Mahalo Kai had been watching the long battle from their vessel when the boat’s captain, Mike Flinchbaugh, realized that the three anglers were having trouble lifting their catch out of the water and onto the Ko’ahu Too. Flinchbaugh pulled his boat alongside the fisherman and aided them in removing the huge fish from the water.

Upon pulling the fish out of the water, the two crews realized that the fish was too large for the fisherman’s small boat, continuing the struggle to bring the fish in, the crews then loaded the catch onto the larger Mahalo Kai and headed for Heeia Kea pier in Kaneohe. When the fish was eventually hoisted onto the pier’s weighing scale, Cazinha was elated to find that his catch weighed in at an astonishing 1,070 lbs.

Cazinha had finally realized the dream he had held onto for the nearly 44 years he had been fishing: he had joined the 1,000 pound club.

Cazinha gives much of the credit to his late mother, Irene M. Cazinha, affectionately known as “Gran.” Upon hearing news of his mother’s passing on Nov. 22, 2000, Cazinha immediately made two lures in her honor. Each lure had a purple and yellow head and was adorned with a lure skirt in Gran’s favorite color.

In the head of each lure, Cazinha had etched the words “Aloha Gran,” along with “John, Nancy, Kai and Cara,” the names of his wife, son and daughter.

Cazinha placed one of the lures in his mother’s hands on the day of her wake to be buried with her. He kept the other lure to run in the ocean during his many fishing trips aboard the Ko’ahu Too.

It was this emotionally valuable lure that Cazinha had been using the day he made his momentous catch. Cazinha’s catch was the moment he had waited for all of his life, and Gran would have been proud of her fisherman for making such a big splash in the Hawaiian waters.

Wisconsin college swimmers test Hawaiian waters at K-Bay

Cpl. M. Trent Lowry
Combat Correspondent

For 116 visitors from Wisconsin, Hawaii’s waters and tropical climate have been a welcome change from the subarctic conditions of their home.

These guests of MCB Hawaii, Kaneohe Bay, are college swim team members and coaches, and a winter getaway to Oahu for practice and team building has been a warming experience for them.

Students from the University of Wisconsin’s Eau Claire and Steven’s Point campuses have been here almost concurrently from Dec. 27, 2000 until today, while students from the university’s Oshkosh campus arrive Sunday and stay through Jan. 28.

“This is my first time in Hawaii. This has been a good mental break, and it’s been nice to get away from two feet of snow (in Wisconsin),” said Robert L. Welcher, 27, head coach of the Eau Claire campus swim team.

The swimmers stayed in open squad bay barracks aboard the base and were able to eat at Anderson Hall Dining Facility, while also being allowed daily access to the MCB Hawaii, Kaneohe

Bay, swimming pool.

“Being here as a team, as opposed to having all the swimmers doing their own thing during the break, builds a stronger team unity,” Welcher said.

“We’re able to train better here because of our size. We normally have to have four practices a day, where here we can have just one good practice,” added Welcher.

The students said they were excited about being able to train using the base facilities, which included access to the Semper Fit Center as well as the pool.

“It’s really nice to have a 50 meter pool to train in. It’s going to be hard going back to a 25 yard pool at home,” said Liz J. Von Feldt, 18, a freshman swimmer at Eau Claire.

Von Feldt and the other swimmers said they planned to take in all the beach activities Oahu has to offer, such as snorkeling at Haunama Bay, body surfing, and sight-seeing.

“This is my first time in Hawaii. It’s gorgeous. This is a great opportunity,” said Von Feldt.

The University of Wisconsin swimmers compete in NCAA Division III contests, and have won several conference championships, Welcher said.
